CITY OBSERVES THRIFT WEEK

SPEAKERS GIVE EDUCATIONAL TALK IN CLUBS—CHILDREN VISIT BANKS.

This is Thrift week and is being observed all over the country. Monday Rotarians heard McPherson Browning on the subject of "Thrift." In part he said:

"The present great emphasis that is being placed on thrift will no doubt prove of permanent value to our people. The word not only means the saving of resources, or money, but the proper use of such funds. A great many persons have learned to save, but only a few have learned how to use savings wisely. There is only one solution to poverty and that is constant saving of surplus. Statistics prove that out of 100 persons only six are financially independent or wealthy at 65 years of age. The expense budget is one means where the young married couples can promote thrift. The years from 30 to 65 should be the greatest earning power and therefore the greatest thrift. The chief channels for investments are stocks, real estate and bonds. The first is not suitable for the promotion of thrift, as all stocks are more or less speculation. Real estate is more permanent, therefore a better means of investment. The purchase of bonds is the most important in the field. Late years have seen a tremendous increase in the purchase of bonds for financing business. It gives the professional man, the salaried man and the laborer a chance to invest his savings in securities which pay from five to seven per cent. If the man with a small surplus could be faced with all the facts, could be given some definite object to acquire by regular and systematic saving, which object would continue to pay him additional income, then we have gone far to solve the financial difficulty in old age and in making thrift habits popular."

John A. Reynolds, of the Union Trust company, Detroit, spoke Wednesday before the Kiwanis club on "How to Create and Conserve an Estate." He said:

"People have been spending too much money the past four years. It was not an uncommon thing a year or two ago to see laborers and mechanics wearing silk shirts while at work in a shop or foundry. They were receiving such big wages, and with no education on thrift, did not know what to do with their money, so they spent it on themselves. The recent lavish dress of women was another sign of waste. Women vie with one another in trying to outdo each other in swell clothes. Another thing we were extravagant in was in automobiles. Many were driving Packards that should have been driving Ford or smaller cars. It has been said the average American family wastes at one meal what a French family could live on for a week. Another way of waste is in estates of men who die without making a will. Everyone with property should make a will if he wants his family to receive the benefits of his estate. Too many times probate judges have political friends they appoint to administer estates that do not give them the proper attention. When you make a will you name the person you want to look after your estate."

Tuesday the school children of the city were shown through the banks and explained the banking ways and how to start thrift accounts.

SMALL FIRE AT HIGH SCHOOL.

The old high school building caught fire Friday morning from some paper in the basement and the pupils were given quite a scare. They marched out in orderly style, but some of them were chilled without their wraps that were left behind. Firemen soon had the fire out and school was resumed. That same afternoon about 1:30 smoke was again seen coming through the floor and school was dismissed for the day. Firemen put out the second blaze. The loss will be about $500, fully covered by insurance.

GOVERNMENT CLEAN-UP SQUAD HERE THIS WEEK

Starting Wednesday of this week, Jan. 18, and continuing through till Friday night, Jan. 20, a government clean-up squad will be in this city, and veterans who are uncertain of how to proceed may obtain information from the commander of the local post of the legion.

In the conference here veterans will be expected to report from Washtenaw county as well as from the city. Dr. Frank B. Broderick, state welfare officer of the American Legion, sends the following general advice:

Many veterans now ill or injured, due to their service, are ignorant that the government wishes to take care of them—that is, to give them vocational training, to award them proper compensation for their wounds, and to see that they obtain proper hospital treatment.

If there is any veteran who believes that he is suffering disabilities, either partial or total, because of his service, the American Legion strongly advises him to get in touch with this squad. He should have the full proof of his statements; if possible, the proper affidavits from physicians. The squad cannot settle cases finally, but it can hasten them along.

Where men are asking quicker actions on claims already in, or where they are protesting awards, their proofs should be all the stronger.

COUNCIL ACCEPTS ALL RESIGNATIONS

OF HOSPITAL BOARD AND SUPERINTENDENT—MANAGEMENT TO BE ELECTED.

At the meeting held Monday night of the city council it was voted to accept the resignations of the board of hospital managers, who were Mrs. J. E. MacAllister, Miss Ethel McCrickett, Mrs. Clifford Goldsmith, Mrs. Fred Swift and Mrs. Lillian Root. The council also voted to accept the resignation of Miss Lettie Day, the superintendent of the hospital. In view of these resignations Alderman J. Stuart Lathers made a motion, supported by Alderman Estelle Downing, that the ordinance be changed to read that the managers of the hospital be made up of two men and three women. Alderman Holmes made a substitute motion that the ordinance be changed to read that the hospital managers be the electors. Miss Downing arose and said that it would be unfortunate if this was done as the women were discerning enough to know that electors probably meant men and the women had been very faithful in doing hospital work and that nothing should be done to offend them. The motion of Alderman Holmes was carried. The matter was referred to the ordinance committee, who may make other changes deemed necessary.

The council voted to accept the invitation of the Owen Sanitarium company to inspect their offices and plans at a meeting next Friday evening. It was also voted to purchase the Walter Fuller property on River street, same to be used for storage of city property. The purchase price is to be $1,500.

Ben Burbank, fire warden, recommended that permission be given to Howard Chapin to erect a garage with stucco finish and metal roof. The city hall committee recommended that the wiring of the city hall for lights be awarded to the Washtenaw Electric Shop and the council voted for same, the price to be $243.

Miss Venora Beal was given permission to cut the curbing at 913 Cross street.

JUDGE'S DECISION KNOCKS OLD AXIOM

The expression, "It takes two to make a bargain," has so long been a common saying that it has been given general acceptance; but in a remarkable opinion handed down by Justice Zeidler of the township of Van Buren, Wayne county, last week it is declared in effect that one person can make a bargain involving the obligation of another without notice or consent and recover whatever the self-made contract demands.

The case in point was that of Frank Miller, a justice of the village of Belleville, against a widow named Charlotte Herig, owning a small farm on Michigan avenue and the circumstances as shown on the trial were as follows:

Mrs. Herig rented a field of about six acres to one Glen Evans to be planted to sugar beets, and when the crop was ready to harvest and no rent was forthcoming she applied to Miller for a writ of attachment on the growing crop. The writ was issued and George Kissane and another neighbor were appointed to appraise the beets. They placed the value at $150, but the officer in making inventory deducted the sugar company's lien for seed and weeding, leaving a net balance of $95. Miller says he was not aware of this and thought the $95 was the total value. It worried him lest the widow lose her $36 rent, so he cranked his automobile and drove to her house and told her she must dismiss her case, saying if she did not consent he would dismiss it next day. Mrs. Herig thereupon consented, only to find later that the writ would have amply protected her. She therefore indignantly refused to pay the costs already incurred. Miller brought suit before Justice Zeidler, who in an elaborate written decision decided that the widow should not only pay for the papers rendered worthless, but must pay Miller $5 for his automobile trip, because he had apparently and in good faith acted as a friend.

YPSI'S PROPOSED NEW HOSTELRY

REPORTS SAY THAT YPSILANTI IS ASSURED OF NEW HOTEL.

For some time past there have been rumors that Ypsilanti was to have a new hotel and some say that now the thing is sure. The latest news is that Charles Pullen is buying $10,000 stock and will have the management.

The Board of Commerce is back of the proposition and will commence active work in a few days in soliciting stock of Ypsilanti citizens, at least it is so reported. Some time ago a committee was appointed from this organization to go into the hotel matter and see just what could be done in the way of a new hotel for this city. An option was taken on the Hatch property, corner of Washington and Pearl streets, one of the best locations in the city. Hotel men have been interviewed by the committee, who seemed to think that it was up to the city to build a hotel before they would consent to take hold of the proposition and come to Ypsilanti with their aid. Local stock solicitation will be made on the grounds that to have a first-class hotel will be a civic improvement to the city and an aid to all business. Approximately the cost of the new hotel will be in the neighborhood of $200,000.

With the proposed new $150,000 sanitarium building and the new hotel Ypsilanti will be on the map this year in the way of new buildings.

SECOND SESSION OF EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE

On Friday, Jan. 20, the second session of the mid-year educational conference will be held at the Normal college. The morning session begins at 9 o'clock and the afternoon session at 2 o'clock in Pease auditorium.

Teachers and patrons are especially invited to attend. The subjects for discussion in the afternoon are: "What I Think is Wrong with the Rural School" and "How I Think It Can Be Corrected."

Twelve representative people—farmer, school officer, grange worker, farm bureau, agricultural college man, county school commissioner, county normal principal, rural school worker in a state normal school, member of the state department of education, and the president of the National Education association, Miss Charles O. Williams, will take eight minutes each on the topic as seen by him or her.

NORMAL COLLEGE WIN FROM OLIVET COLLEGE

The Michigan State Normal college won their third consecutive game Friday last, when they defeated the Olivet college quintet on the latter's floor by a score of 14 to 10.

The first half ended with the Normals in the lead, 12-4. Coach "Doc" McCullough then withdrew his first team men in order to keep them fresh for the M. A. C. game on the following night and substituted four new men, who with the help of one regular held the Olivet five to a comparatively low score.

On Saturday evening, Jan. 14, the Normals met the M. A. C. first team on the Lansing floor and were defeated by a score of 22-28. The game was closely contested throughout. In the last few minutes of play the local college led by one point, but were tied by a foul. Five minutes overtime was allowed to play off the 19-19 tie, and at the end of the five minutes the two teams were tied 21-21. Another five minutes overtime was allowed and in the last few minutes of play the M. A. C. forwards tossed three field goals from the center of the floor, while the Normals could get only one free throw. This game was a surprise to Aggie enthusiasts, as they had counted on an easy victory. Miller, of Albion, officiated.

The local five will play Mt. Pleasant here Saturday evening. This promises to be an extremely good game, as the visitors are reported as having a fast, clever team this year. They defeated the Normals twice last year and went through their season without a defeat. They have four of their old men back.

OBSERVE FATHERS' AND MOTHERS' DAY.

Tuesday afternoon the W. C. T. U. observed Mothers' day at the home of Mrs. Elmer Ross, 704 Pearl street. Rev. Mrs. Play Skinner spoke of the mother's responsibility. Mrs. Chester Alban and Mrs. Grizner also took part in the subject. Mrs. Hattie Root was chairman.

Mrs. C. Verschoor is in Monroe with Mrs. T. Greenfritz for a few days.

GOV. GROESBECK TO OFFICIATE AT THE FAIR

The Washtenaw County Fair association seems to be "Johnny on the job" and is making things hum to be in readiness for this year's fair. In an interview the president, Charles J. Hutzel, says:

"The officers are doing everything in their power to make the fair a success; they are giving their time and money to put over the proposition. If they can have the cooperation of the farmers and business men there will be no question of the success of this year's fair."

Wednesday, Sept. 20, will be Dedication day, and they have the promise of Governor Groesbeck that he will be here and officiate. An elaborate program will be carried out and it is expected by the association that the largest crowd ever assembled in Washtenaw county will be present.

The membership campaign is now on and up to date 27 life memberships have been sold. A life membership is $25 and entitles the holder to two season passes for life. Money raised by the sale of life memberships go into the building fund. The officers of the fair expect enough life memberships will be sold to take care of the housing facilities and urge all who are interested in seeing Washtenaw county have a fair second to none in the state get back of this membership drive with their money and help put it over. It's now or never.

HAWKS LOSE HOME BOARDER HIS $700

The Hawks home on Maize avenue was totally destroyed by fire Thursday of last week. Besides the contents $700 in bonds and securities belonging to Ira Wilson, a boarder, were lost.

The department got out on record time but fully five minutes were consumed before the fire could be located, and as it had a good start when first discovered the department had no chance to save the house.

SAYS NO REASON FOR THE SEARCH WARRANT

Rev. Elder Young, colored minister, stated to Justice Stadtmiller Wednesday afternoon that Arvin Gotts had no reason for getting out a search warrant to search her house for goods he said she took. She stated that he, Gotts, gave her the articles found and that receipts were shown to Justice Stadtmiller showing that other articles were given to her for services rendered as Gotts' housekeeper.

Only a few of the articles named in the search warrant were found and Officer S. A. Ferguson, deputy sheriff, stated they were not concealed by Mrs. Young.

THE WASHTENAW CO. AUTO SHOW

IS TO BE ATTRACTIVELY GARBED IN BLACK AND GOLD.

Black and gold will be the predominating color note in the decorations for the Washtenaw county auto show, from Feb. 1 to 4, in the Apex Motors building, Ypsilanti. The background for the show this year is the work of the Detroit Arts and Crafts studios and for several weeks its workmen were busy constructing the decorations. A number of handsome plaques dominate the wall and ceiling covering, using the black and gold tones. Rich and colorful transparencies help to dominate the color scheme and to give warmth and tone to the decorative effects.

The draperies are unusually handsome. The material has been treated with Batique designs, which give the show an individual touch. Where the wall permits the drapes have been relieved with decorative paintings and other ornaments treated by the applique and relief methods.

In keeping with the decorative scheme the signs designating each exhibit are particularly handsome. These are finished in blue and gold, a slight contrast with the black and gold tone of the decorations. The background for the automotive exposition will be marked by simple, clean cut lines and excellent materials, proving a fitting setting without detracting from the wares exhibited by the automotive merchant.

The local show is a participant in the state circuit of automotive exhibits organized by the Michigan Automotive Trade association, to give manufacturers an opportunity to assist the dealers by furnishing special exhibits to make the circuit, which might not be obtained for individual shows, and to enable the individual show to improve its decorations.

CLOVER SEED PRICES ADVANCING.

Farmers are much interested in the price of clover seed, both those who have seed for sale and those who will have to purchase their supply this spring. The State Farm Bureau seed department reports that both America and Europe are short of clover seed and that 80 per cent of the American crop is already marketed, and there appears to be no "burdensome" stocks anywhere in the country. Toledo, the world clover market, is reported to have about 21,000 bags on hand, while last year they shipped 55,000 bags. The corn belt states are urging more clover and less corn. Seed merchants are wondering how they will supply the demand no one knows where prices will go. All indications point that good seed is going to be scarce. The seed department urges farmers to assemble their orders immediately, and when they do purchase to be sure that the seed is of good quality and that prices are in line with the quality of stock purchased. The seed department believes that all farmers needing seed should take immediate steps to secure their supply.

THE GIRL, A HORSE AND A DOG.

Once more Daddy hunted for a dead pine branch and lighted a torch. The shacks were empty, of course, and while we did not go into the tunnel, we could see, through the broken bulkhead, that it was half filled with caved-in earth and broken stone. Underfoot there was only the coarse gravel of the tunnel spoil, and a full troop of cavalry might have passed over it without leaving any visible trail. Worse than all, Barney, the pie-faced collic, appeared now to be completely at fault. He was running around in circles with his nose to the ground; a pretty plain indication that he had lost the trail.

"I'll be bat-clawed and owl-hooted if I know what-all to do next," Daddy puzzled.

He hadn't any the best of me there, and it was precisely at this point that the split-faced dog took it into his head to add another snarl to the knotted tangle. After galloping around all over the place half a dozen times, snuffing at everything in sight, he had finally come to a stand with his nose at a crack in the tunnel boarding. The next instant he had leaped through the hole where the planks had fallen away, and presently we heard him whining and scratching behind the bulkhead.

I don't know about Daddy Hiram's heart, but I do know that mine was doing flip-flaps and back somersaults when we ran up to see what the dog had found in the tunnel. For a half-second after Daddy thrust his torch through the hole I was afraid to look—scared stiff at the thought of what I might see. When I did look, I saw the dog digging frantically at the heap of caved-in earth, and, of course to my disordered imagination, the hole in which he was burrowing transformed itself at once into a newly made grave.

"Good God!" I gasped; and then: "Look, Daddy—right under your torch!"

He looked and staggered back, and would have dropped the blazing pine branch if I hadn't caught it from his hand. For what he saw, and what I had seen, was the unmistakable print, in the soft earth just inside of the planking, of one of Jeanie's brown-leather riding-boots.

In another half-second we were both in the tunnel and Daddy was heaving the dog aside from the hole he was pawing out in the earth fall. Snatching up a broken-handled shovel that the former tunnel drivers had thrown away, the old man flung himself madly upon the dirt pile, and since there was room for only one to work at a time, I stood at his elbow and held the torch. I don't know what he expected to find hidden under the slide, but I do know what I was afraid he was going to find.

After all, it was only a flash in the pan, so far as any dreadful discovery was concerned. Inside of five minutes, Daddy, working like a man demented, had dug the entire cave-in away, and there was nothing to show for the frantic shoveling—less than nothing. Again, I don't know how Daddy felt, but I'm sure I was able to breathe better, the improvement dating from the moment when it became apparent that the earth heap had grown too small under the shovel stabs to possibly conceal a human body.

The collic had followed us and Daddy Hiram scowled down at him. "If that dog could only be like old Gran'paw Balaam's donkey for a minute 'or so," he mused. "He saw her go in there and saw her come out; likewise and the same, he must've seen what she did after she come out. Looks as if he wanted to talk and tell us, don't he?"

Barney was certainly giving a good imitation of that, or some other anxiety. He was frisking about and barking, leaping up now and then to snap at an imaginary fly in the air. Daddy caught him by his lower jaw and held him immovable. "Go find her, Barney!" he commanded; "good dog—go find her!"

The instant he was released the col-

He acted as if he understood perfectly what was wanted of him. Springing aside, he began to circle again, nose to the ground, and within half a minute he was off, this time heading into a dim trail that led away diagonally down the mountain, not in the direction of Atropia, but rather on the other leg of a triangle, one side of which might be the desert edge, one the trail we had followed from the Atropia road, and the third the route we were now taking to the eastward.

It must have been within an hour or so of midnight when we left the mountain forests behind and got into the region of barren foothills. Here the collic seemed much surer of his ground, and we had our work cut out for us in the effort to keep up with him. In the starlight I made out the line of telegraph poles as we ran, and pretty soon our dog leader swung off to the right and we found ourselves trotting on a line parallel to the railroad track and only a little way from it.

Pretty soon the dog disappeared; and then we heard him barking at a little distance to the left of the parallel tracks. When we went to see what he had found, the mystery suddenly took another tack and veered off into a new channel. In a small grassy hollow between two of the hills we came upon the dog and the calico pony. The bridle reins had slipped over the bronco's head, and Barney had them between his teeth and was backing and tugging and apparently trying to pull the pony along.

"Well, I'll be ding-jiggered!" said Daddy; but I couldn't unload quite that easily. For me the riderless pony meant an accident of some sort.

"Heavens!" I gasped; "do you suppose she's been thrown, and—maybe crippled?"

"Who—Jeanie? Why, bless your heart, Stannie, son, she can ride 'em wild! And that calico wouldn't buck a baby off. No, boy; don't you go to frettin' about nothin' like that. When she got out o' that saddle, it was 'cause she was good and ready and wanted to."

"When she got off to take the train, she tried to make Barney lead the pony home," I suggested. "Would she be likely to do that?"

Daddy Hiram slapped his leg. "You've hit it exactly, son! Don't know why I didn't think o' that at first. It's an old trick that she taught the collic when he was a lit' pup. And Barney, he tried, and when he couldn't make the pinto leave off grazin', he come for us. Sure!—that was the way of it. What say if we go back to the edge o' the timber and camp down? I reckon there ain't nothin' to be gained by hittin' the trail afore we've had a lit' rest-up spell, is there?"

I had no objection to offer, you may be sure; and after we had found a camping spot, and had picketed the pony with the light rope that Jeanie always carried tied to the cantle of her saddle, we made a good fire to serve in lieu of the blankets that we didn't have and stretched ourselves out to sleep the sleep of the fagged and leg-weary.

The next thing I knew—and it seemed to be just about a minute after I had closed my eyes—Daddy was shaking me awake.

"Time to be moggin' along, if we aim to get home for breakfast, sonny," he announced. At the break of day we were coming into the Cinnabar-Atropia road at precisely the point at which we left it the evening before.

The sun was just beginning to gild the upper heights of Old Cinnabar when we trailed over the broad plateau bench below the mine and headed for the slope that led up to the dump head. As we topped this last hill there was an amazing surprise awaiting us—a surprise and a shock. On the level spot which served as a dooryard for the Twombly cabin stood a horse, saddled and bridled, its drooped ears and hanging head showing that it had been ridden far and hard. And on the cabin door-step, sitting at ease and calmly chewing a half-burned cigar, was Bullerton!

CHAPTER XIII.

A Battle and a Siege.

It was Daddy Hiram who made the first break.

"Charley Bullerton, where's my daughter?" he rapped out, hailing the question at the loafer on our doorstep in a sort of deadly rage that you wouldn't have thought possible in so mild-mannered a man.

"You needn't worry about her," was the cool response. "Didn't you get the note she left for you, saying that you needn't?" Then, as if he had just seen and recognized me: "Hello, Broughton; we've missed a day, but I'll give you the benefit of it and not dock you. Are you selling the old water-logged Cinnabar for twenty thousand dollars this fine morning? It'll probably save you more or less trouble if you are."

He didn't get the kind of answer he wanted; or any relating to the mine. Unbuckling Jeanie's gun and handing it to Daddy Hiram, I walked across to where he was sitting, keeping a wary eye on the hand which would have to be the one to go after the weapon he had once showed me hanging under his left arm-pit.

"Mr. Twombly has just asked you where his daughter is, and you haven't told him," I gritted. "You've got about ten seconds in which to tell him all you know, and after you've done it, I'm going to trim you!"

He had scrambled to his feet when he saw me coming, and just as I expected, that watched right hand flicked suddenly under his coat. At that I rushed him and we mixed it promptly. I got hold of the gun hand before it got to the pistol butt, and at the clinch we were at once the place each trap-put a penny in a chewing-gum machine and then not get any gum because the machine didn't work?

Got cheated and felt provoked, didn't you?

Beware that the same cheating doesn't occur to you when buying pipe for a plumbing job. Exceptional cheapness in price means some sort of "nigger in the wood pile." Unless you put your money in good, genuine pipe, you're liable to get nothing in return in the way of satisfying service. You lose, not just one cent, but many dollars—for pipe failures are costly.

Good pipe is cheapest in the long run and makes satisfied customers. That's why we sell it.

DRAMA OF NORTH AT THE WUERTH THEATRE

If one is tired of gazing for the thousandth time at the antics of tinsel-draped beauties and anemic-looking men attired in evening clothes who are being made to suffer the horrible pangs of love and jealousy in dainty drawing room scenes, or other gilded surroundings; or if perchance one is bored by repetition of allegorical concoctions emanating from out the wildest flights of fancy, it is a relief to find such a picture as the one playing at the Wuerth theatre Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 25 and 26, in which Roy Stewart is supported by Louise Lovely, "The Heart of the North" is its title.

This is a drama of the far northwest, where none but the bravest can withstand the hardships of a region beset with snow and ice and a country harboring lawless men and wild animals. It is a land where the frail and weak perish at the wayside in the inexorable game of life and where only brute strength dominates.

The interesting outdoor scenes were actually photographed "north of sixty" at a considerable expense, so that realism would result. Those responsible for the photoplay should be congratulated upon obtaining the combined services of Roy Stewart and Louise Lovely in the leading roles. When presented at a private showing for the first time in New York city, at which were present discerning critics of the screen, it was agreed that it will be long ere another motion picture will make its appearance containing the entertaining value of "The Heart of the North."

GABRILOWITSCH IN ALL RUSSIAN PROGRAM

An all-Russian program will be provided by Mr. Gabrilowitsch and his associates when the Detroit Symphony orchestra makes its third appearance for this year in Hill auditorium, Monday evening, Jan. 23. In addition to the purely orchestral numbers, Mr. Gabrilowitsch will appear as piano soloist with the orchestra, offering Rachmaninoff's "Second Concerto" during the performance, of which Victor Kolar will direct the orchestra.

The program in full is as follows:

Crabby.

A Kentucky court holds that a man who kisses his sweetheart on a street car is guilty of a misdemeanor. But who is going to be crabby enough to file a complaint, if the girl doesn't?
